in Grants Pass for a short time Sunday evening. The Doctor in addition to handling a large practice as one of the leading physicians and surgeons of Southern Oregon, and of attending to the duties as a member will be one of the largest and finest orchards and hay farms in Rogne generally been held that this land $1.00 bottle at will not be profitable to alfalfa and the Rotermund's. Doctor's experiment is being watched with much interest by hay men of this valley. The completion of the big irrigation canal which takes water from Fish lake, a large body of water near Mt. Pitt, makes it possible to have indigestion or constitution entire land under ditch. The irrigation of sticky land is another problem that is looked at askance by irrigationists as it has been considered that sticky land being so open during the dry season when it cracks as though a young earthquake had scamed it that not water enough could be gotten on it to maintain a moisture in mund's. the soil sufficient for alfalfa growing. Dr. Pickel feels certain that his irrigation venture will be a success and as sticky land is the richest known in Rogue River Valley, that he will have alfaifs crops that will be record breakers.
